Celebrating Black History Month

So, why is Black History Month celebrated? We celebrate Black History Month to commemorate the considerable achievements and contributions of African-Americans in the United States. Black history is the portion of American history that specifically discusses the African-American or Black American ethnic groups in the United States. Most African Americans are the descendants of African slaves brought to the United States from 1555 to 1865. Black History Month is a tribute to the generations of African Americans who struggled with adversity to achieve full citizenship in American society.
